[Japanese Language Department]

The Japanese language department has a course (1 year or 6 months) that aims to enter the department of Care and Welfare, and a course (1 year and 6 months) that aims to work as a specific skill by learning the Japanese language and skills of caregiving.

In the higher education course, learning the Japanese-Language Proficiency Test (JLPT) N2 and learning the technical terms of caregiving will be useful for classes at the vocational school. By cultivating communication skills, communication with Japanese students and teachers in specialized classes will be much easier. In the employment course, you will learn about Japanese culture, lifestyle, and nursing care skills and knowledge so that you can work effectively. There is employment support such as individual interviews and job fairs, so you can think about the future with confidence.

You can learn the specialized language of caregiving, which is very few in Japan!

It is the perfect vocational school for you who are aiming for a nursing care job!!
